

Bio for Adam Greene

Adam Greene is a partner in the Washington, D.C. office of Davis Wright Tremaine, where he primarily counsels health care providers, technology companies, and financial institutions on compliance with health information privacy, security, breach notification, and information blocking rules. Previously, Adam was a regulator at the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services, where he played a fundamental role in administering and enforcing the HIPAA rules. At HHS, Adam was responsible for determining how HIPAA rules apply to new and emerging health information technologies and was instrumental in the development of the current HIPAA enforcement process.

Adam has been recognized as a Band 1 Privacy and Data Security attorney in Healthcare by Chambers and Partners, one of the top ten influencers in health information security, one of the top 50 healthcare IT experts, and is a frequent speaker and author on health information privacy and security and information blocking issues.