

Mara Smith-Kouba, JD, MBA, MHA is an attorney at Bristol Myers Squibb where she provides legal and regulatory support for the company on issues related to medical strategy, data use, and product commercialization. She has spent her career developing an expertise in health and life sciences law. She is also an adjunct professor at Drexel University's Kline School of Law and the University of Miami, teaching courses on risk assessment and management and health law and she currently serves as the Chair of the American Health Law Association's Life Sciences Practice Group, is on the Kline School of Law's Health Law Program Advisory Board and is a board member for the Come to Believe Network.